Mermaid's Slipper was super. The welcome was warm, the food was delicious. Slight, very slight negatives, there was no soup on offer and it was a cold night. The mains took a long time to arrive, we were seated by ordered relatively quickly, delicious amuse Boucher, followed by equally delicious bread and starters. We then waited minutes for our main course. It is a small restaurant and I'm sure everything was co... read more. What

User doesn't like about The Mermaids Slipper:

Lovely environment. Warm contemporary and welcoming. Staff a little slow and a little inexperienced. Food really good. However, we would happily forgo all the in between courses. It's just the bread that the table wants.. not all the other bits which I imagine are costly and time consuming. I would much rather have more vegetables with the main course. We have been a lot.. and the merlot has always run out and there... read more.
