beautiful, tasteful decoration in the winter garden, where we had the afternoon tea. Nice and warm inside, very cozy with a plush pillow and sofas I felt very comfortable. the view from the conservatory looks at the lake/golf course, which was visually appealing. the food and the champagner was delicious and the staff was polite and obligated. a beautiful jewel of a place, I would recommend! doesn't like about Dining At Centurion Club:

It started badly when the Kir Royale was not mixed and was served with a straw. Sat at a table where one side had a much lower chair than the other. Only bread offered was end of day solid brown. No steak left. Starter of carpaccio tasted only of shallot relish. Main fine. I would suggest the chef looks up how to make a bavois... disappointing and phenomenally expensive, especially for very moderate food. £15.50 for a... read more.
