it is a beautiful little Indian restaurant nothing spectacular, but with good meals offers and service. it seems to be family-run, and everyone there was always friendly and happy. it is nothing much to see inside, it looks a tad tired and dated, decorated to look more authentic. I and my partner are going quite often because it is a cheap date at night. I can't honestly say it's the best Indian in the city, but we'r... read more. What User doesn't like about

Malabar Spices:

I miss Curry Corner. Food a bit bland. Waiter not great; I appreciate we all have to start somewhere but seemed a bit overwhelmed despite us (three people) being only customers. Friend asked if had any non alcoholic beer and cider was suggested; last time I checked cider contained alcohol. Chef/owner (unsure which/both) followed up eventually asking if all okay; I was polite but honest and reaction was to walk off mu... read more. The guests love it when Asian cuisine meets a bit of creativity. That's exactly what you can expect at the Malabar Spices from Plymouth, with its successful Asian fusion cuisine - the right mix of what you know meets the adventurous world of fusion cuisine, the menu also includes fine vegetarian dishes. Customers also know to appreciate the use of traditional Indian spices , On the daily specials there are also several Asian dishes.
