we have this place at a visit in dingle, as a family of ubiquitous. it was very old school vegetarian, maybe just a bit to alternative for my taste. the fresh vegetables were delicious, and as we eat a lot on holiday, it is a challenge to find fresh vegetables on the menu. I had the curry with rice, as the kartoffels needed 20 minutes otherwise, my children had the omelette and my omnivore friend had the open sandwic... read more. In beautiful weather you can even be served in the outdoor area. What User doesn't like about Adh Danlann Gallery Cafe:

The menu is very small. The soup and the "curry" were the two vegan options. The owner/cook put a plate in front of us and said "curry" was a tiny plate with some steamed kale and an even tinier side of chutney; no curry in site. Very confusing! Then, I asked for the rice that comes with it and she said "I'm cooking the rice, two or three minutes". A few minutes later she presented white rice topped with vegetables in... read more.
