beautiful little bakery. that is the second gails I was also, and it has a bit more of a small bakery local feeling than the first. we enjoyed some delicious pastries including their fantastic sausage rolls and a quiche. the service was good and fast. it was not too busy when we visited Thursday morning. I would go out of this to return to this place. read more. What S doesn't like about Gail's Bakery Crouch End:

I 'm familiar with a few Gail 's in London and this is my least favourite. The food and the coffee are obviously great and the same as the others, but the atmosphere and seating areas are bad. Firstly the fridge makes a stupidly loud hum. The seating areas are poor noisy and cramped, and the area at the back is probably the best, but they often start closing it very early, putting the chairs up on the tables which sa...
