What User likes about Doone Braes: The open doors of this hotel were the most welcome sight on a wet and windy Sunday afternoon for a group of cyclists doing the Hebridean Way. Place was already busy and we had no booking but they squeezed us in and served up a delicious meal. As we were cold and wet, and camping gear damp from night before, of us booked rooms with the others allowed to camp in the grounds. Staff and owner couldn't have been any more... read more. The place also offers the possibility to sit outside and eat in beautiful weather. What User doesn't like about Doone Braes:

we had two nights here, and it's a pretty dated hotel in a beautiful environment. ideal for hiking and cycling in the environment. eating is very common, but the place is spacious and the personal pleasing.
