Chop Suey House in Newbury has sparked a mix of responses following a recent change in ownership and management. While some diners reminisce about its previous glory, noting a decline in both food quality and service standards, others continue to praise the establishment for its friendly phone service and quick delivery of hot, freshly prepared meals. Reviews highlight inconsistent dish preparations, with missed orders and bland flavors becoming recurring complaints. Despite the challenges, several loyal customers still commend the restaurant for its value and improved offerings, showcasing the ongoing debate about its current culinary direction.
