This teashop does a big trade in take away and well as eating in. Its not huge but has some tables and seating by the main window with benches and tables outside. They have toilet facilities too inside. They sell some gifts and cards as well as amazing cakes and savoury food. The tables have lovely fresh flowers and it is tastefully decorated. The staff are very friendly and helpful. The food is served in huge portio... read more. In beautiful weather you can even eat in the outdoor area. What marktinkler doesn't like about The Linton Kitchen:

We arrived slightly after the main lunch period. It took us three gos from the daily board to get a sandwich that they said they could make for us and then only with certain key ingredients missing. When the none too cheap sandwiches arrived they were v disappointing no butter, no moistening element (mayo/cucumber etc) just cheese (good) and a bit of lettuce furthermore the bread was like the slices that from a loaf...
