This restaurant is meant to tingle at my roots (I'm Malaysian). Review? I wouldn't say the food is bad by any stretch. In fact, I would say, it's tasty if you consider the dish in isolation outside the cuisine it is meant to represent. But it's not very Malaysian to me. Seems like the flavours have been adjusted to suit international palettes. Pity...because it's rare you get Asian restaurants that do take time in ma... read more. If you crave for desserts, Nanyang with its magical desserts can easily make an end of it, Moreover, one can find an excellent diversity of different Malaysian national dishes such as Wantan, Roti, Naan and also Ayam on the menu.
