What AlbatrossOnPar3 likes about Bodrum: Not only is the food amazing, the tunes though, 90s bangers one after another, non stop. Felt like home since we stepped in even though we were in a foreign country, no wonder why the restaurant was completely packed make sure you book . The several trees set along the room makes the space heaps more welcoming and cosy, at times you'd think you are on some sort of Mediterranean riviera golden coast. Wee blond waitres... WLAN is available free of charge. What Lai199 doesn't like about Bodrum:

This use to be my regular spot however lately I have been noticing the food is not tasting the same, not the same quality including the taste, appearance and temperate of the food, and also not the same service, this is not judged from a one of visit. Then I had realised the staff have changed, and it is now no longer a family run business, the new owners now are not very friendly and miserable looking. read more. With the large variety of coffee and tea specialties, a visit to Bodrum becomes even more attractive.
