What Alex Cook likes about The Linton:

Unsurprisingly the steak is the star of the show here (I believe that the owner is butcher) although the veggie haggis was also excellent and apparently homemade. The burgers are very traditional, no bacon, blue cheese or pulled pork type toppings just well seasoned meet with the traditional addition of tomato and lettuce. There is a good range of well kept ales and the beer garden out that back is a little green oasis... read more. In nice weather you can even be served in the outdoor area, And into the accessible rooms also come visitors with wheelchairs or physical disabilities. WLAN is available without additional charges. What Jacob Hall doesn't like about The

Linton:

Sad to say we wont be back and hopefully neither will the grey prawns. Two scruffy, maskless cooks kept wandering through the dining room maybe a dozen times each. Not impressive. We ordered a prawn risotto and a medium rib eye steak. The rice was overcooked and the large prawns were undercooked. The steak was medium but over seared and tough to eat. The front of house staff were friendly Disappointed to have to writ... read more. A visit to The Linton is particularly valuable due to the large selection of coffee and tea specialties, Particularly fans of the English cuisine are excited about the large selection of traditional meals and love the typical English cuisine. If you decide to come for breakfast, a hearty brunch is ready for you.
