For changing offers, please get in touch via phone or use the contact details provided on the website. The Griffin offers a fixed price menu with a few vegetarian options per course. Some reviewers were disappointed by the simplicity and lack of taste in the dishes. While some were pleased with the quality and presentation of the food, others found the portions to be small and the wine prices to be exorbitant. The menu reflects the environment and the kitchen garden, with ambitious taste combinations. Despite some mixed reviews, the friendly staff and atmosphere make the Griffin a recommended stop for those near Brecon. The restaurant received praise for its warm welcome, delicious food, sensible menu, and excellent service. Reviewers enjoyed a variety of dishes, from traditional fish and chips to more adventurous choices like white crab salad and pea risotto. The only downside mentioned by some was the automatic inclusion of a tip in the bill. Overall, the Griffin seems to have improved over the years, with friendly staff, a welcoming atmosphere, and a good selection of food and drinks.
